Budda-Jitja

Jobfind's Budda-Jitja initiative is a computer-based skills training program which helps Indigenous job seekers prepare for working life.

Literally meaning "Brother, Sister", Budda-Jitja is Australia's first pre-employment training program designed specifically for Indigenous job seekers. The Work for Life program focuses on being employed and the specific areas of emphasis needed to prepare for and undertake work and meet the needs of employers.

- 87% course completion rate (at March 2009).
- 56% of surveyed participants are more confident and 51% pass their new skills on to their peers.
- The interactive modules are delivered through animated Indigenous characters and vernacular.
- The Employer Module provides guidance on employing Indigenous people including cultural distinctions, retention and business incentives.
- Modules may also be available to current employees.
- Available as a 'Classroom in a Box' - a laptop network requiring no internet connection - for rural and remote delivery.

Developed by Indigenous people for Indigenous people
